LADIES' Trunks and Companions, at W. MARTIN'S, Winston.

NELSON HINE, of this vicinity, had the misfortune to receive painful injuries, by the running away of a team he was driving to town, Wednesday evening. The accident happened on the hill, near Isaac Hauser's residence, the wood with which the wagon was loaded, slipping upon the harness, causing them to start. The most injury is upon Mr. Hine's face, and one side is badly bruised and cut, from being dragged some distance on the ground.

JOHN WIMMER's mustang pony was the cause of some excitement on Main Street, Saturday. The vehicle was standing in front of B. F. Croiland's store, in Winston, and John, Tink, and others were loading a barrel of rice at the time. The heavy weight in rear of the wagon raised the bed, which came down with a bang and the frightened pony sped away at a rapid rate, not stopping till it had distanced the best portion of Main and made a circuit of Salt and Elm Streets. A few pounds of rice with slight injury to wagon and harness summed up the damages.

REVIVALS.—During the present Fall twelve protracted meetings of five different denominations have been held in and within 15 miles of Winston and Salem, a greater number than has been known for several years previous. We had intended to give the full number of professions, but find it impossible and append a clause of the general good accomplished from the lips of a devoted minister, who says: "The laborers in the Master's vineyard, this season, have been many. Earnest and hard-working servants of God; and although the general results do not meet our highest expectations, yet 'brand cast upon the waters, may, after many days return.'"

HEADQUARTERS for Men's and Boys' Hats. Latest Styles. at W. MARTIN'S, Winston.

Mrs. MOON and Miss PAINTER, two Quaker revivalists, opened a series of meetings in the Methodist E. Church, last Saturday, under auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. We had the pleasure of hearing their able addresses several times since the services opened, and both ladies are intelligent and earnest exhorters. The meetings will continue during the week and Mrs. Moon and Miss Painter have signified a willingness to remain as long as their labors shall have a beneficial effect. Mrs. Moon announces their doctrine to be unsectarian, and invites members of all churches to join in the work. Three or four converts have thus far professed, with a number of penitents yet at the mourner's bench. They draw large and attentive congregations.

THE MORAVIAN SYNOD of the Southern Province opened its session in the Moravian Church Chapel on yesterday morning. Bishop E. A. D. Schweinitz is the presiding officer, and James T. Linebeck, appointed Secretary. The following members present compose the Synod:

Delegates from the Congregations: Bethabara.—Henry Null.

Bethania.—Wm. Lehman and Edgar Linebeck.

Friedberg.—Trangout Spangh, Samuel Wooley Jesse Knouse and H. Crouse.

Friedland.—John L. Stuart.

Macedonia.—Samuel Swearingen.

Philadelphia.—Alexander Mack.

Salem.—J. W. Fries, Dr. Bahmann, J. D. Stewens, Dr. Shaffner, C. T. Pfohl, Dr. Hunter, H. W. Shore, Dr. Siewers, A. A. Spangh, and James T. Linebeck.

Two delegates will be elected to represent this Province in the General Synod, which convenes at Herrnhut, Germany, in 1879.

REBUS.

You will always find a large lot of the cheapest Hardware, consisting of Saws, Axes, Shovels, and other goods by the load every week.

LAST FRIDAY EVENING'S CONCERT, given in the Chapel of Salem Female Academy, under the musical direction of Prof. Agthe, proved a most enjoyable occasion to all lovers of the "concourse of sweet sounds," while it brought to the minds of the audience both towns, filling the room just comfortably—thus affording that physical ease and repose so desirable when listening to a musical recital, and three hours of the first thing on the menu offered for the evening, was a Chorus-Motet, from old Father Hayden, Incense of praise, sung chastely and well, in the Latin text indicated, the musical scoring demanding no mean knowledge of the laws of harmony on the part of the executants. There was fresh in it, as in the after of Beethoven Canon opening the 24 part of the Programme. Such music one can take in allopathic doses, under almost any conditions, hearing what it does, the certain classic dignity and sanctity (although it may, also, very properly, be cheerful) that should pervade the music given in the festival of such an old school as the Academy's character should be also typical of some distinctive form of Art—meaning and aesthetic fitness, something, as we said, that is not to be confused with the turn of all things into hum-drum. In the two sections referred to, there was fine diva in the piano accompaniment, and in the first, Prof. Agthe. The vocal duo of Rubinstein's—the "Wanderer's Night-song"—was very cleverly given by the Misses Magie and Maud Wester. Gottschalk's "Lullaby" almost sings itself, while it was feelingly rendered by Miss Joyce Gwynn, with perhaps, only a touch of too much muffled piano in the voice. Chappin's light and airy Trio, "The Reapers," with the voices chasing each other about in spiral play, given intelligently and with good emphasis, selling well in the higher tones of the leading voice. The Misses Carmichael, Greider and Smith sang this. Miss Dibrell received an encore upon her interpreting of Mann's pretty and characteristic "Lotus Flower," a young lady has good taste and abandon in her singing, and when the several remoter tones in her register have cleared, and she possesses a desirable voice in melo-dramatic selections and situations. All the piano-forte solos met with respectable treatment, viz: "The Swallow," of Crozier, played by Miss Bettie Mercer; the Fantasia from "Luceria," "Oh, as fair as poet's," etc., of Sydney Smith, by Miss Sallie Vest, and the "Fountain" pastoral scene of Lybreg, by Miss Laura Cannon, all compositions of medium difficulty, with nothing trashy about them, and all saving being made of, as is unfortunately too frequently the case, when young ladies, suffering under the cruel ordeal of stage fright, attempt rendering what they could have perfectly mastered when alone with their instrument. Miss Cannon, in the Fountain, nursed the keys feelingly and with ease, well sustaining the melody given in the left hand, while her leggio playing with the right, was limpid and clear. All these pupils evinced the honest musical training, as did also, all the voices we heard in the various sections, of which most were eminently distinctive—illegally adapted for any nonsense or tam-tam. Some chamber music was interspersed through the programme, taken up by Miss Amelia VanVleet, Prof. Agthe and Minnie, An Andante from Reissiger's Op. 107, for Piano, Violin and Cello, and a Duo for Piano and Cello, Ch. Schubert's, being a transcription of the ever familiar and fresh "Serenade" of the elder Schubert, played by Miss VanVleet and Prof. Agthe. Compositions of this character demand for their correct interpretation musical intelligence arrived at something of maturity, and an evenness and repose of temperament, which the young ladies, Miss VanVleet's command of her instrument was well displayed in her tempo—a crisp and clear execution and in abandon—finish of tone, and in the Professor's violinic playing is refined and spirited, while he shows vigor and delicacy, possessing that subtle power of analysis and instinct which enables him to perceive the true relation of the voice to his accompaniment, viewed both as an artistic whole. We have not, as yet, heard him, when essaying the role of virtuoso piano playing, and he may, possibly, rest content with the chamber and chamber music, to ride the cheval de bataille of the Great Masters, to mounting the hard-mouthed Pegasus himself. The Piano Duo—"Martha" and "Tannhauser" were to our thinking, somewhat questionable selections, as Overtures to Operas, at best, lose all their orchestral force and warmth of coloring when transcribed for an instrument having fixed tones like the piano. "Martha" was pleasing, but the entire Opus is not very alluring, even when stage-mounted, while the driving through the metaphysics and philosophy of Tannhauser, in doing honor to the Leviathan of Bayreuthian fame, is apt to prove a very thankless, as well as overwhelmingly difficult task, appreciated, as it can only well be, by connoisseurs of the "Music of the Future." The gem and charm of the evening recital, however, was the lovely Quartet in Canon "Oh Lord, veil not thy face" from the Supreme Master of the Realm of Music—the immortal Beethoven, sung by mixed voices, the group being ably assisted by Dr. H. T. Bahmann and Prof. Agthe. These male voices, as also those of Mr. Lichtenhanter, tenor, and Mr. Eugene Burt, bass, supported, and we forgot to say, in the Haydn selection. The soprano voices represented in the piece were: Misses E. and A. De Schweinitz, Siewers, Fries, Grunert, Gwynn, Dibrell and Carmichael. There is ever a profound and imperious fascination clinging to all the rich legacies left to the World of Art by Beethoven, and, as a rule, those dare who venture translating his wonderful tone-pictures; yet we are induced to admit, in this connection, that the Professor deserves sincere commendation for the effectiveness with which this double fugue-quartet was given under his training, here in our midst. It has certainly been no easily accomplished task. The voices blended harmoniously and well in this number, a piece in which Beethoven has drawn upon all his transcendent resources of melodic invention, interweaving of parts, subtle modulations and grand harmonic contrasts. It drew out a warm encore, as did also, a duet for Alto and Baritone, written by the Professor, and sung by himself and daughter, Miss Laura. It is composed in the strict school of German song-writing, and was excellently rendered, Miss Agthe, with a voice strong, full, just to her part, and showing a fine school, as well as powers equal to the high demands of her art.

The programme was, in every way, an attractive one, and, for the most part, appealing to the best in art—illustrating it in every way creditably, and understandingly, and reflecting highly upon those having in hand the Musical Department of this Venerable Institution of Learning. The outlook for the future is encouraging, for present indications give out no uncertain sounds. We have not attempted criticism in any absolute sense, it being rather our pleasant duty but to allude and chronicle what occurs to us as being so deserving of extended notice, both as regards the various performances, and the spirit pervading the entire evening.

Actuals, a hardy and pleasant, and contributed to a sort of conceived and lingering impression that where St. Cecilia reigns, the surrounding air seems to partake, in some mysterious way, of the bright and joyous flush of a young girl's happy smile.

AN Astonishing Fact.

A large portion of the American people are tormented by the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden, instead of a pleasure, existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away for its virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

THE FARMER'S and MECHANIC'S MANUAL. The King of Lightning Calculators, Ready Reckoners and Labor-Saving Books for Workmen of all trades and occupations. 21,000 facts of universal application. By W. S. Courtney. Revised and enlarged by George E. Waring, Jr., of Ogden Farm, formerly Agricultural Engineer of Central Park, N. Y.; author of "Elements of Agriculture," "Draining for Profit and for Health," "Earth Closets and Earth Sewage," and Agricultural Editor of the New York Evening Post.

This is a practical book, designed for the every day use of Farmers, Mechanics, Artizans and Workmen of all trades and occupations. It gives more reliable information, better arranged, and less space than any work of its class ever published.

It is a sound, honest, instructive book, being all it professes to do, and more.

The New York Tribune says: It is so full of important information, so well put and so easily made available, that every man in the country is a loser who does not get it, read it and profit by it.

The Wilmington, (N. C.) Post says: "The amount of practical information it contains is something astonishing, and it is well worth its cost."

The Asheville, (N. C.) Pioneer says: "It is a book every farmer and mechanic needs, and should have. We can hardly say too much for it."

THE NEW GIFT BOOK, GOLDEN THOUGHTS ON MOTHERS, FATHERS, AND HEAVEN. Comprising nearly Four Hundred Original Articles and Choice Selections in Prose and Poetry, by distinguished authors at home and abroad. With an Introduction by Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler, D. D. This volume stands unequalled as an embodiment of the ripest thoughts and utterances of the best and wisest minds upon the "three dearest thoughts to mortals given." It is a beautiful and enduring monument to dignity, glory and power of Motherhood. It is a volume for Home, a sweet, loving voice pleading for its peace, its safeguards and its sanctity. And it is also a voice whispering in loving accents of Heaven, delineating its glories, and developing a purpose to secure it.

you wish a choice and lasting gift for Mother, Father, Brother, Sister, Son or Daughter, or Friend, at home or abroad, get it! Rev. A. L. Oerter, Local Agent, Salem, N. C.
